

Dear Householder

Would you like some FREE advice and ideas on reducing your household bills and helping the environment?

The Community Carbon Exchange is working in your area to give you information and share ideas on how you can reduce your carbon footprint. It can also help you to reduce your energy bills, save some money and benefit from a healthier lifestyle and environment.

Over the next few weeks, our trained Community Carbon Exchange advisors will be visiting your area to offer advice and ideas to help people get carbon aware. If you can take the time to have a few minutes chat with your advisor on your doorstep, you can decide if you want individual advice on actions that will help you most. These actions may be in the home, they may be about the food you buy or how you travel. Your responses are recorded on a survey sheet and the questions take less than 5 minutes.

Each survey is entered into a draw for a food hamper worth £40. These surveys also help Scotland move forward to reach its carbon reduction targets

Most people we have worked with so far are surprised at how simple actions, which are easy to follow, make a difference to their lifestyle and get other benefits from their actions too.

Our advisors wear bright red Solar Cities Scotland uniforms and carry an ID badge. Remember, the service is completely free - we do not have any products or services to sell.

Solar Cities Scotland is a local charity located on Whitfield Drive on the grounds of the old Whitfield Primary. SCS projects are the Community Carbon Exchange (CCX) and the Sustainable Energy Promotion Scheme (SEPS)s. We are funded to help raise awareness of carbon reduction and encourage people to take action in reducing their own carbon footprint, through the Scottish Government Climate Challenge Fund
